ABSTRACT

The information in this handbook is provided to help with the organization and retrieval of black materials by attempting to touch on most of the questions that one will raise in his work with these materials. The handbook is the outgrowth of discussions of classification and cataloging at the Institute on the Selection, Organization, and Use of Materials by and about the Negro. It is aimed primarily to college libraries using Library of Congress classification and subject headings, although there is some comparative discussion of the provisions of Dewey as compared with those of Library of Congress. Neither of these classification systems provides adequately for black materials. A detailed examination of the Library of Congress subject headings is presented. (Author/NH)

INTRODUCTION

The intensified emphasis, both in our schools and in our national life, on Africa and on the black experience in American life, has brought about a greatly expanded publishing output of materials in support of this new thrust. have instituted black studies programs with a resulting increase of library acquisitions to support these programs. The librarian. who is concerned with the organization of these materials, soon finds that provision for them within existing systems of classification and subject headings is limited. The periodical literature, one soon discovers, may be located in the periodical indexes only after an imaginative and circuitous approach. It is hoped that the information in this handbook will provide some help in the organization and retrieval of black materials, in that it has attempted to touch on most of the questions that one will raise in his work with these materials.

This handbook is the outgrowth of discussions of classification and cataloging at the Institute on the Selection, Organization, and Use of Materials by and about the Negro, held at Fisk University, June 15 to July 24, 1970. It is beamed primarily to college libraries using Library of Congress classification and subject headings, although there is some comparative discussion of the provisions of Dewey as compared with those of Library of Congress.

CLASSIFICATION

Black Materials: LC and DDC

 Any discussion of classification and cataloging of materials by and about the Negro leads right away to two different discussions, depending on whether one is using Library of Congress or Dewey. But even before this branching takes place, one generalization can be made, and that is that neither classification system provides adequately for these materials. They both have a distinctly WASP bias, and the Library of Congress classification, of course, is geared to its own collection. Prior to the seventeenth edition of Dewey (DDC), there were even fewer possibilities for the classification of black materials, if that is possible. Using slavery as an example, the sixteenth edition of DDC provided only 326 for these materials; the seventeenth edition now refers us to 323.3 for the relation of state to slaves and to 301.4522 for the sociology of slavery. And 326.1 now has a bracket around it with the note, "class in 380.144"; 326.92, formerly biography of slaves, now has a bracket and the note: "Class biographies of persons associated with a specific subject in standard subdivision -092," which doesn't take us very far. A glace at the index under Negroes reveals that there is no provision for this as a subject beyond the listing of two subdivisions, one for ethnic groups and and one for lingual regions.

Nor did Library of Congress offer a much wider choice. In the second edition of the E-F schedule, copyrighted in 1913 and reprinted without any additions and changes in 1958, it was pretty much E185 or nothing, and that consisted of one and a half pages with Negro spelled with a lower case "n." The third edition of the E-F schedule, with additions and changes to January, 1965, provides an expanded E185 of three pages, and an E441-453 of almost three and a half pages. In addition, Library of Congress cataloging policy has more and more been placing black materials within the subject area into which they fall. Biographies, too, are placed with the subject in which a person has distinguished himself, as is generally true in DDC. For example, Black ivory; or, The story of El Zubeir Pasha, slaver and sultan, as told by himself is assigned by Library of Congress the Dewey number of 962.4 (history of Sudan) and an L C number of DT108.15 (Sudanhistory-biography); Folk songs of the American_Negro is Dewey'd in 784.756 (other kinds of songs--Negroes) and LC'd in ML3556 (national music--Afro-American); The Negro in American national politics is Dewey'd in 320.9 (political situation and conditions) and LC'd in JK2275 (political parties).

Yet, in spite of the increasing practice of placing black materials with subject areas, the catch-all number is still widely used, both in LC and DDC, even when there would seem to be ample basis for placing a title within a subject class. These catchall numbers are, in LC, E185, and, in DDC, 301.45, and are the hall-closet of classification. E185 is concerned with Negroes as an element in the population, and deals with general works and history, status and development since emancipation (including religion, occupations, crime, other topics, and biography.) It provides a vast umbrella for any title that is not specifically provided for elsewhere throughout the schedules. In Dewey, 301.45 (nondominant groups) provides the same kind of cover. The scope note indicates that it includes prejudice, discrimination, segregation, integration; refugees and displaced persons. 301.451 provides for an ethnic breakdown of nondominant groups into indigenous and nonindigenous groups. 301.452 is a socioeconomic and religious grouping, with 301.4522 being its extension that one will often encounter with slave materials, as it provides for groups distinctive because of condition of servitude.

Interestingly, a single title can get mixed treatment from Library of Congress catalogers, as, for example, Paul Edwards'

The southern urban Negro as a consumer. The DDC number assigned at Library of Congress is 330.9 (economic situation and conditions); the LC class number assigned is El85.6 (status and development since emancipation--general works.) Since there is ample provision for this subject in the H schedule, it would seem to be much more consistent to place it with other works dealing with consumption of goods.

Let us examine a subject which will figure heavily in any collection of black materials: slavery. In Dewey, as has been noted, it centers around 325: slavery and emancipation. Slave trade, formerly 326.1, has now been placed under commerce at 380.144. Most of the material will be classed in 326. The Library of Congress, in its subject headings list, gives the following, with call numbers, for the various facets of slavery:

Slave labor (HD4861-5)

Slave-trade (HT975-1445; U. S., E443, E446; International law, JX4447)

Slavery (HT851-1445)

Slavery--Emancipation (HT1025-1037)

Slavery--Justification (E449)

Slavery and the Church (HT910-921)

Slavery in the Bible (HT915)

Slavery in the U. S. (Political aspects, E338-440; Slavery and slavery movement, E441-453)

Slavery tends to fall into two clusters: HD and HT, and E441+.

HD is economic history, and beginning with 4801 the subject is labor; at 4861, labor systems begins with slave labor a subdivision.

HT provides further for some aspects of slavery: HT901 (economic aspects of slavery) is for general works only, with a note to prefer HD4861-4865, slave labor. HT905 deals with plantation management, HT910 with religion and slavery, HT941 with the law of slavery. The institution of slavery is practiced in the U. S. falls in E441-453; slavery in other countries tends to go into H.

As an illustration of how materials on slavery tend to be classed, the following titles are representative of the range likely to be encountered within the general subject of slavery. Their class numbers, both LC and DDC, are listed in columns opposite the title.

Title	LC	DC
The Emancipation Proclamation	E453	973.71

While one of the shortcomings of the Library of Congress classification is the lack of a general index, there is a rather general overview in the E-F index as to the general assignment of black materials, as it does make reference to locations outside the E-F schedules. Most of the subjects, though, still cluster around E185. Negro citizenship, education, folklore, suffrage, religion, protection and relief are to be found in schedules other than E-F, as are Negroes in medicine (R), civil service (JK), as a theme in art (N). Another point of access to classification numbers for black materials is through the subject heading list of the Library of Congress.

Double Cutter Number for Black Materials

Library of Congress call numbers include double Cutter numbers when it is necessary and desirable to use them. These double Cutter numbers occur in various situations, and one of the most frequent is to indicate a subject or to sort out specific aspects of a larger subject and provide for their grouping together on the shelves. These topical Cutter numbers are now printed in the claraffication schedules, and immediately preced the author Cutter number. For example, note how the following example is printed in the fischedule:

1 202.4

District of Columbia. Washington. Monuments. Statues. Memorials

- .Al General works
- .87 Braddock's Rock
- .C7 Columbus Monument
- .£6 Ericsson Monument
- .62 Garffeld Statue

Such is the manner of Cuttering for Negroes under certain subjects, generally using ,N4 or .N39 before the author Cutter number. This special subject Cutter number for black materials crops up on any class in which such subject grouping would be relevant. The 2 schedule (Bibliography and Library Science) is particularly likely to have such provision for special subjects.

Some of these subjects for which a special Cutter number is provided for black materials are shown below:

Z6944

Periodicals and newspapers
Special topics, A-Z (for classes of periodicals not otherwise provided for under subjects)

.A6 Amateur journals .C5 Children's periodicals .L5 Little magazines .N39 Negro newspapers .W6 Women's periodicals

Example: Z6944.N39D5

Z695 Cataloging. Subject headings Bibliography .A1 .A3-Z General works .1 By subject, A-Z .A25 Aeronautics .A4 Agricul ture .C5 Chemistry .N4 The Negro Oriental literature .07 .P3 Packaging etc,

Thus, a subject heading list for use with black materials would be classed Z695.N4 and the Cutter number for the main entry added to it.

National bibliography. America. United States Z1361 Special topics (not otherwise provided for), A-Z

Examples:

Z1361.N39B2 Baker, Augusta. Books about Negro life for children

Z1361.N39153
Indiana University Libraries. Focus: black America bibliography series

Z1361.N39M5
Miller. The Negro in America: a bibliography

In the P schedule, PN1995.N4 provides for Negroes in films; PS508, (American literature. Collections. Special classes of authors,) provides for black writers by the addition of .N3. Thus, James Emanuel's Dark Symphony: Negro literature in America is classed PS508.N3E4. And so on throughout other schedules, the device of the double Cutter number is used to bring together special materials within a subject.

Negro Education

In the L schedule, the education of Negroes and its various facets appear as special aspects of education, from LC2701 to LC2913. This includes the usual rundown of periodicals, collections, societies, general works, general special, etc. There is elementary and higher education, division by country and by individual institutions. Of special interest to us here is the provision for individual black institutions, with Fisk, Howard, and Tuskegee assigned numbers by way of example. A working out of Table I for Fisk University appears below:

Thus, a history of Hampton Institute by Francis Greenwood Peabody turns out as LC2851.H32P3. Note the necessity to Cutter for the individual author if the institution is not the author.

The L schedule presents no special problems with regard to classification of black materials. A sizeable percentage of black titles will fall in the L schedule, and one can observe the shifting social picture as the Jeanes, Slater, and Rosenwald Fund publications give way to the integration battle, to urban classrooms and community control of education, the disadvantaged, and busing.

African Literature

This is an area that can be troublesome, not only in the light of change of status from colony to independent country, but also because LC has different ways of treating African literature. Most of the schedules have a provision for colonial literature and literature outside the country itself.

In the case of French literature, for instance, there is fully developed plan arranged by country, area, or region for French literature outside of France ("Outside of France" but within the confines of continental Europe, and "outside of France" meaning former colonies and other areas). Within the continent of Europe, all French literature is classified in PQ1-2686, but for authors outside of continental Europe, special tables are devised with a place for individual authors.

Oceana (Table Ea)

Thus, Anthony Cecil Brench's book, The novelists' inheritance in French Africa: writers from Senegal to Cameroon, is CLASSED PQ3984.

With English literature the arrangement is slightly different: there is provision for colonial literature at PR8300, but with the warning that "Here are classed literary history, collected biography and collections of the literature of ... Africa, and other colonial literature in English. The works and biography and criticism of individual authors are to be classified in PR1800 to 6076." In other words, individual authors who use English as their medium, whether they are colonial or whether they are within the boundaries of England or continental Europe, will be classed with the period of English literature in which they write, not in the local arrangement.

Subject Headings

Depending upon the depth with which one analyzes his black collection, the Library of Congress subject heading list may or not be adequate. The present LC list has assimilated an earlier list of Negro subject headings by Frances Yocum of the Fisk Library, and has brought it up to date (by eliminating, for example, such archaic terms as "passing.")

The LC subject heading list was specifically created for indexing the Library's own very large universal book collection, and headings fit into an overall plan. In regard to headings for ethnic groups, a standard pattern has been evolved, in which all aspects of any group are treated consistently in the same manner. In-depth approaches to the study of Black Americans, as well as Black Studies programs, will encounter ingroup terminology which is not the same as LC terminology. One solution to this, if one wants the terminology to be the same, is to adapt the cards locally. Another possible solution is to bridge the gap by a system of appropriate cross-references. For example, for a request for material on the Black contribution, a "see" reference might be made to "U. S. --Civilization--Negro influences"; for Black education, a reference to "Negroes--Education." In many of these already standardized situations, LC has already provided the appropriate cross-references.

Some subjects are distinctive and specific enough to warrant their own establishment as subject headings in a black collection, and one might do well to work out his own list, including such topics as Harlem Renaissance, Poor People's Campaign, March on Washington, etc.

Periodical Index Subject Headings

The problem of gaining access to black materials through periodical indexes becomes a highly imagainative guessing game, as each of the major indexes employs slightly different terminology. The list below was drawn up as subjects for which there were likely to be requests for information, and the subject headings under which material was found appear in the tables that follow.

African Dress, neither under Africa.

African Cooking

The main entry was "Cookery" with see also references to Dinners and Dining, Stores, but no such mention of the topic African Cooking under Africa's cross references.

African Holidays

Materials not listed under this topic. Holidays was used as a main entry which had no references to African holidays, but it did list see also topics of Christmas, vacations, and festivals.

Emerging Nations

Emerging Nations was not listed as a subject, but materials on the topic was found under Africa--Historiography, Nationalism--Africa, Pan-Africanism and Africa--Nationalism.

Note: Black is used as a subject heading only with proper names, i. e., Black Panther Party, Black Muslims. Negro and Negroes in various subdivisions are terms most commonly used. Afro-American is used only in reference to Black Studies. Negro and Negroes best place to look for extensive materials. Other headings such as Segregation, Housing, et al. may also have articles on Blacks in the areas. Subject headings from 66-70 haven't changed much. 1949-52 edition has similar subject headings—no Black, primarily Negro and Negroes; Afro-American Culture is also used as a subject heading.

Black Power

This was not used before 1969 but could be found in the 1969 volume.

Black Experience

Nothing was found under this subject heading. Black Studies was not listed but information could be found under Afro-American Studies.

Conclusion was that before 1969 most information on Black subjects were found under Negro - or Negroes. In 1969 the term Black was initiated along with subject headings Negroes.

Emerging Nations

This term was found under (1) Nations, New, see also Public Administration - Nations, New; (2) Afro-Asian States, see also subheading Afro-Asian States under Russian-Economic Assistance Program.

(All in 1966 volumes.)

The 1968 volumes carried the following: Developing countries. See Underdeveloped States as well as cross-references to various sociological development of the states, for example: Economic Development - underdeveloped states.

Ghetto Speech

Ghetto speech was not found. Such subject headings as Languages - Dialects - Speech yielded nothing.

Black Panther Party

Black Panther Party for self-defense was found in the 1968 volume.

Black Nationalism

Not a main entry in P. A. I. S. but a "see" reference was made to Black Nationalist Movement.

Minorities

Listed as a subject heading in P. A. I. S. There is also a "see also" reference to Negroes. "See also" references refer to information listed under these headings:

- 1. Negroes
- 2. Colored Persons
- 3. Non-whites

African Dress, African Food and African Holidays

These were not listed as subject headings nor could cross-references be found in relation to the above entries. This is due to the fact that P. A. I. S. is mainly an index to economic and Public Affairs and limits itself to these topics. (See the following chart.)
